

INCLUSION

Inclusion . . . this term is currently often discussed with regard to the individual living environments.

But what does it mean? We understand that people with disabilities should no longer integrate and adapt to the environment, but that it is already designed in such a way that everyone can live on an equal footing. No matter how different each individual is. Sport is broadly defined as purposeful physical activity. Exercising together creates a sense of belonging.

University sport in general represents an intersection between education and teaching. Each of our courses has its own educational goals and is therefore seen as an opportunity to create spaces for movement as well as spaces for experience and encounters, in which all people are taken for granted. Regardless of whether you have a disability or not. Accordingly, everyone is welcome in the sports center of the MLU Halle-Wittenberg:

It doesn't matter whether you speak German perfectly or not. . . whether you are right-handed or left-handed. . . or what physical or mental impairment you have. What counts for us is the shared experience, facing new challenges and enjoying movement itself. With appreciation and respect. And above all fair! We recognized the need and set out.

What framework do you need? Let's explore all the possibilities together so that you can attend your desired course. Please contact us for this: katrin.roloff@sport.uni-halle.de!
